DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain.

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

Most of the problems that have been occurring with the switch of power are the result of people wanting their voices to be heard. No one is going to be happy with the outcome of any of this, because there really is no exact solution. If President Trump decides to make an executive order of some sorts, some people will be ecstatic and others will be furious. Some people believe that marching in the middle of the street and yelling things out is going to fix our country. We live in a time where people always have to have things their way, so I believe this country is going to split and citizens are going to go against each other, because they disagree with the opposing views. One topic that I believe will cause a multitude of issues is the federal funding being taken away from abortion companies. This issue is the result of people believing that hard working tax payers should be funding abortion centers. Lastly, most people believe that President Trump is stopping all immigration, when really he is just stopping ILLEGAL immigration.
